In the Fifth district Jack Smith and Joe Weiler made a most stubborn fight against Orson H. Hewlett, who is regarded as a probable Kearns-Smoot senatorial nominee. They went to the expense of hiring three carriages to bring delegates to the primary. When the meeting was called to order there were 161 delegates present. Hewlett was elected chairman, and his delegates to elected chairman, and his delegates to the county convention were elected by a vote of $8 to 73. Each side had a straight ticket before the primary.

DESPICABLE ALIENS

ment of Jews in Roumania has been communicated to the powers which are parties to the treaty of Berlin, and Euparties to the treaty of Berlin, and European governments like Austria-Hungary, which has looked on and done nothing, have been placed in a somewhat humiliating position.

"I am afraid, however," cables the correspondent, "that the result of America's action will be nfl. What King Charles of Roumania, a just and humane sovereign, could not achieve; what a number of ministers—conservative, liberal and unionist—have attempted in vain; what even the Jewish bankers of Frankfort-on-the-Main. Berlin and Vienna, who several years ago failed to deal in Roumania'n securities when Roumania urgently needed a loan, have not been able to bring about, namely, justice to the Jews in the country, the note of the United States is not very likely to effect, however well meant.

Grievance of the Jews.

Grievance of the Jews.

Grievance of the Jews.

"The grievance of the Roumanian Jews is not restricted to the new artisans' act, which comes into force tomorrow, because the interuretation of the act, which was issued stmultaneously in the form of an administrative decree, removes the principal objection from the point of view of the Roumanian Jews, samely, that those whose grandfathers were born in the country and who themselves lost their former nationality without being allowed to acculire that of Roumanian, should have to prove reciprocity in their former countries, else be obstructed in their trades and occupations. "What still remains in the new act," the correspondent zoes on, "to which objection might be taken, applies to foreigners in general, namely, that preference is to be given in the case of all public and municipal works to the value of $6.000 to Roumanian citizens if their tenders are not higher than those of foreigners by 5 per cent.

"The special grievances of the Jews are of another acture. They have been treated as baneful and despicable allens at every step in their lives, though many did service for Roumania on the field of battle. They live on sufferance; they must contribute to the cost of government like the gentiles, yet they have not the rights even of gypsies. They are prevented from giving their children a groper education; they must screen themselves behind a Roumanian citizen if they wish to exercise any but the lowest calling, and there is no security for them.

"Worthy Roumanians, without distinction of class, are accustomed when at oods with the king or the ministry of Tide of Emigration.

The men, who are mostly artisans, go first, and as soon as they can send masage money for their women and children they join them. I believe that about 1,550 families every week, as many as the Jewish relief committee in Vienna can provide for at one time, are thus emigrating. It was stated the other day that 3,500 passports were taken out by Jews during the last three months at Bucharest, and that house rent was rapidly declining in consequence of this wholesale emigration, both there and in other Roumanian towns. In a number of industries, such as the cioth and fur trades, disappearance of the frugal and inexpensive Jewish workmen has already been felt. If the boyars see their houses

London Comment In an editorial article the Standard says Secretary of State Hay's note is likely to cause the powers some embarrassment. Referring to the dispatch of its Vienna correspondent, the Journal says this message quite confirms Secretary Hay, and that "President Roosevelt has the double right to speak in the name of humanity."

and that "President Roosevelt has the double right to speak in the name of humanity."

"We need not inquire too closely," continues the Standard, "whether the United States has really suffered to an appreciable extent by the immigration of the Jews from the Danube. If the entire Jewish ropulation of 2,000 persons crossed the Atlantic they would speedily be lost in the vast population of those of force alone could be approval of nobody except rabid anti-Semites. Obvious as this is, we doubt, however, whether Secretary Hay's note can produce any effect. European powers have already spoken and been disregarded. The use of force alone could compel Roumania to grant equality to the Jews, and we see no prospect that force could be applied. The remedy would be worse than the evil. No single power would be allowed to undertake the task, and common action seems beyond the bounds of possibility.

"The injury to their pockets may bring the Roumanians to a less aggressive frame of mind, and it is certainly better calculated to awaken their humanity than any number of diplomatic notes, which they know will not the followed by armed of the business rather than put the bank in receiver's hands.
